

Dear ICC Board Members,

As the Chief Building Official for Boulder County, I have great concerns about the changes that the Board is considering for the IECC development process. It seems that this move will reduce or eliminate the ability for state and local governments to vote and participate in the code development process and will disenfranchise many of the key users of building codes. This move will empower industry stakeholders at the expense of consumers while simultaneously undermining confidence in the entire body of ICC published codes.

I urge you to reconsider this approach.

Thank you for your consideration,

- Ron Flax
