

Kim Lovegrove

Kim Lovegrove is an Adjunct Professor University of Canberra, Past Chair of the Building Professionals Board Victoria, Past President of the Australian Institute of Building (Vic Chapter) and the New Zealand Institute of Building (Northern Chapter), Past Deputy Director of the Australian Building Codes Board (Mid-90s), Past Deputy Director of the Department of Building Control (VIC) (Early 90s) and Predecessor of the VBA. Kim headed up the team that had carriage of the National Model Building Act that became the blueprint for regulatory law reform in the nineties.

Kim has also been the Past Ethiopian Honorary Consul to Victoria.

Kim, in his capacity as a Senior Consultant to the World Bank, assists the World Bank with the provision of international best practice law reform advice on building regulations.

He has been deployed in law reform advisory capacities in Mumbai, Shanghai, Beijing and Tokyo. Kim is an Adjunct Professor at the University of Canberra and a past Conjoint Professor of Building Regulation and Certification at the University of Newcastle (New South Wales).