

For 30 years Robert Dupuy's mission has been to create inspirational, yet functional, lighting design for all types of spaces. Trained in theatrical lighting design with a Masters of Fine Arts degree from the University of Oregon, Robert has illuminated many landmark buildings. In Oregon his work can be seen in the Oregon Coast Aquarium, Fogo de Chao Brazilian Restaurant, High Desert Museum, Tower Theatre, Gilkey Print Center at the Portland Art Museum, St. Mary's Cathedral, Sunset Presbyterian Church, Beaverton Library, and the Columbia Gorge Discovery Center.

Robert is known nationally for his dedication to improve the lighting for older people and the vision impaired. He is the chair of the Illuminating Engineering Society's Lighting for the Elderly and Low Vision Committee and is a member of the National Institute of Building Sciences Low Vision Design Committee. On a quarterly basis his thoughts and comments on aging and low vision appeared in a column he co-wrote for several years in Lighting Design and Application magazine. His current projects include St. Mary's Cathedral in Portland, OR and Greer Gardens Senior Living Community in Eugene, OR.

Robert can also be found on the speaking circuit where he has presented at Lightfair and the AIA national convention. He is currently in the planning stages for a two year tour of the US and Canada speaking to sections of the Illuminating Engineering Society on lighting for the elderly.

Publications showcasing some of Robert's work include Architectural Record, Metropolis, Architectural Lighting and Lighting Design and Application among others.

Robert was the Creative Lighting Director for Interface Engineering for 22 years where he led its Lighting Studio before entering semi-retirement in January 2014. Currently he is a Principal with Robert Dupuy Consulting in Portland. As an Adjunct Professor at Marylhurst University and Portland Community College, Robert helps younger generations understand the power of lighting.

Robert Dupuy, Principal
Robert Dupuy Consulting, L.L.C.
967 N.W. Ash Creek Lane
Portland, OR 97229
503.707.4508
robert@robertdupuy.net